

What is God really like?

© Paul Prows

Why is it that people are so threatened about talking about new ideas about God? Why are they so set on ideas that come from books that are thousands of years old? What is so cool about old and vague? Isn't it time to look at some fresh ideas?

Let's just suppose that God made it thru the dark ages and didn't die when Time magazine declared it. Let's say that God has been doing magic for the whole time and is there now doing what God does. If you are with me this far, we have made a rather interesting discovery and perhaps you can stretch this even further with me.

If God has lived longer than even the oldest vampire, then that means that God is around today and probably has some ideas to share. If God is around, then why is it such a stretch for people to believe that God will talk to us now? Now for the tricky bit...what if the God of the old books was misinterpreted or that the men that wrote about God were talking about their own ideas of God and they may not be what God actually was about?

Why aren't the views of people that communicate with the current God as valid as the views of those that lived in 3000 BC? What if we could learn some new ideas from having dialogues with God now and not be so stuck on what happened before there was even paper? Isn't because it is easier not to think and just do what the books tell us or what we think they are telling us?

I know that this may put many religions and many people's jobs on the line because they earn a living teaching from the old books, but what if they got some new ideas and taught those as well? Maybe this would create some new jobs.

When people get too crazy with the ideas of the old books, wars start happening and people start killing others in the name of their God or some holy war and then people get put off from the idea of a loving God. Is that what people want from their extremism? Why is selling a person's or a churches version of God so important to people and why do they hold onto these ideas so tightly?

Just to be transparent with you, I have another view of all this because I talk to God on a regular basis. To make it even more interesting, I talk to the Feminine Divine called Goddess. I say that they both are alive and well and have many ideas to share with us. I say "us" because I believe that anyone can have this connection and all it takes is some training and lots of concentration and everyone can have these dialogues, not just special people.

- 1- It is one thing to read a book, especially those that are considered sacred, and to have the writers tell you about their views of God.
- 2- It is another experience to have people, mostly in churches and synagogues, teach you about God from what they read and understood. These traditions have been around us for thousands of years. This is how I was brought up as well. Learning from written words and spoken words are how most of us have created our views about God. Most of us are fiercely loyal to the views that were given to us.
- 3- Now I want to propose the next step that is infinitely more interesting as a learning method and that is to experience God for you, in the first person.

All of us do this to one degree or another in every moment. The Intelligence, which is portion of God, is running thru us and controlling our bodies and all the miraculous functions that occur there all the time. The way that the Intelligence in our bodies and in the Universe works is...simply, intelligent.

It is not that big of a stretch to tune your mind into the Intelligence and have ideas flow back and forth with your consciousness and thus begin a rather heavenly dialogue that will change your life and the world forever. This is how I say the process works for me and I hope it happens for you very soon.

I am here to share what I have learned from years of actual experience and dialogues. You may disagree but I would like you to open up your mind and ask you to defer your skepticism just long enuf to hear what God and Goddess shared with me. You never know, this may be the beginning of the greatest adventure of your life.

I want to begin with what God and Goddess are NOT:

They are not:

Jealous

Envious

Angry

Vengeful

Punitive

Judgmental

With expectations for us

Violent

Impressed by things

Impressed by words without actions

Limited to any shape or form

Limited by space or time
Biased towards certain blood lines or lineages
Subject to what we think they are
In the business of planning our lives
Fire and brimstone
Subject with even the smallest degree to any so-called evil or devil or Satan etc

What God and Goddess ARE:

Love

Joy

Acceptance

Omniscient

All powerful

Creators

Gratitude

Willing

Live

Intelligent beyond our current comprehension

Collaborative

Working at the highest levels for the good of the One

Funny

Quick

Engaging

Unconditional in their love and acceptance

In control

Perfect

Full of vision

Connected to all

Full of integrity
